FOREWORD

All praise to Allāh . We ask Allāh táālā to send blessings upon the Prophet ﷺ and give him greetings of peace - and upon his descendants and his companions.

This monograph is a brief list of well-known Ĥadīth works, as a companion guide to the Infographic: Periodic Table of Well-Known Ĥadīth Sources.[1]

I have always been fascinated with books of Ĥadīth – ever since I embarked on my journey towards learning Ĥadīth sciences, many years ago. The most famous Ĥadīth work in South Asia,[2] after the six motherbooks is Mishkāt al-Maṣābīĥ. Indian scholars frequently cite it in their books and fatāwā. When I first began reading it, I noticed that Bukhārī, Muslim and other works were cited as 'sources' and I wondered if there were other sources (not mentioned in Mishkāt). In one of his works, Imām Aĥmad Riđā Khān mentions that he frequently teaches and refers to more than fifty Ĥadīth works and named thirty books.[3] It was also my habit to note down the names of books (and authors if available) mentioned in books that I read. Once, I interacted with a Shāfiýī scholar, who advised me to visit a madrasah in Kerala if I wished to browse Ĥadīth books. I visited the well-known madrasah, as advised by the shaykh.

I was overwhelmed by the number of books I saw in the library. I requested the bemused librarian to let me stay and make notes, to which he agreed without a second thought. I spent a few days there and made a list of hundreds of books which also included fiqh, áqīdah and other subjects. In the coming years I would make a few more trips to the madrasah to browse books in the library.

Over the years, it became a hobby to make notes of the names of books and authors. I would make notes by visiting book-fairs, from bibliographies of books and book-lists. With the explosion of PDFs, I would collect, categorise and store books.

One of the earliest reader's guide to Ĥadīth works I came across was Bustān al-Muhaddithin, by the great Indian Ĥadīth master, Shaykh Ábdu'l Ázīz Dihlawī. It is a well-known work (in the subcontinent), which introduces the reader to one hundred books of Ĥadīth, including commentaries and works on Ĥadīth principles. Another work with a list of Ĥadīth sources is Jam' al-Jawāmiý of Imām Jalāluddīn Suyūṭī, in which he attempted to consolidate Ĥadīth from nearly 100 books.[4] I had now made two lists (from both works) in a tabular format[5] – and I was working on classification of books, when I found Kattānī's Al-Mustaṭrafah.[6]

[4] He listed the books he would use as sources, hinting that in the event of his death, others could complete his unfinished work. And thus it came to pass – he passed away before its completion, and Imām Ábdu'l Raūf Munāwī added nearly 5000 more Ĥadīth in his Al-Jāmiý al-Az'har as a supplement to Suyūṭī's work.

[5] Both tables are present in this guide.

[6] I have listed the works mentioned in Mustaṭrafah also in a table, and will be released separately.

Based on Kattānī's categorisation of Ĥadīth works, and perusal of numerous bibliographies, I have compiled a list of 165 well-known works of Ĥadīth. This is neither an exhaustive, nor a definitive list. The main objective of this periodic table is to revive an interest among Muslims in the Ĥadīth literature, to educate students, scholars and commoners on the rich heritage of Ĥadīth literature by presenting it in a visually attractive format. We ask Allāh táālā to forgive us and guide us on the straight path.

Major Sources:

1. Risālah al-Mustaţrafah of Shaykh Jaáfar al-Kattānī.
2. Bustān al-Muhaddithīn of Imām Shāh Ábd al-Ázīz Dihlawī.
3. Preface of Jalāluddīn Suyūţī's Jam' al-Jawāmiý.
4. Bibliographies in published works.

Wa billahi't tawfiq.

CATEGORIES OF BOOKS IN THE INFOGRAPHIC: PERIODIC TABLE OF WELL-KNOWN ĤADĪTH SOURCES

Imām Muĥammad ibn Jaáfar al-Kattānī has mentioned more than fifty categories of ĥadīth books in his Risālah Mustaţrafah, from which I have selected 36 categories for the Periodic Table and the most famous – and published - works in each category. In the Mutafarriqāt/Miscellany row, I have included one or two works from the following categories:

Gharayib: Ĥadīth dictionaries of arcane words.

Áqāýid: Ĥadīth are related to belief and theology.

Afrād: Lone-narrator reports.

Taşawwuf: Ĥadīth that pertain to moral rectitude and piety

Fađāyil: Ĥadīth of superiority, virtues and merits of person, place, an action or good deed etc.

Ţibb: Ĥadīth that speak of health, medicine and cure.

Fawāyid: Notes of masters concerning ĥadīth, narrators etc.

Zuhd: Ĥadīth that speak of frugality and abstemiousness; of withdrawing from worldly pleasures and abstaining from luxury.

Amālī: Annotations of ĥadīth masters.

Marāsīl: Collection of Mursal ĥadīth.

Fitan: Ĥadīth that speak of End-days, eschatology.

Nasikh-Mansukh: Ĥadīth that are related to abrogation.

The classes in the PT and corresponding categories are as follows:

Class	Category of Books	Number of Works	Serial in Periodic Table
I	Kutub al-Sittah (Six Mother Books)	6	1-6
II	Books of Four Imāms	4	7-10
III	Şaĥīĥ – Mustakhraj – Mustadrak	8	11-18
IV	Mújam	8	19-26
V	Musnad – Muşannaf	20	27-46
VI	Sunan	12	47-58
VII	Shamā'il – Siyar	18	59-76
VIII	Tārīkh	6	77-82
IX	Tafsīr	6	83-88
X	Adhkar	7	89-95
XI	Ahkām – Gharā'ib	8	96-103
XII	Ílal – Aĥādīth Mushtaharah	8	104-111
XIII	Mawđūáāt - Manākīr	8	112-119
XIV	Zawāyid – Aţrāf – Takhrīj	14	120-133
XV	Jawāmiý (Anthologies and Supercollections)	16	134-149
XVI	Mutafarriqāt (Miscellany)	16	150-165

Notes:

1. This is not a definitive list of books. Certain books which are considered as important sources by ĥadīth masters or jurists might have been omitted.

2. The shortlist was based on the two lists: one from Bustān and another from Jam' al-Jawāmiý. However, some works in both the lists belong to related sciences and not ĥadīth narrations per se – such as Asmā'a al-Rijāl (biographies of narrators) and Uşūl al-Ĥadīth (ĥadīth principles). Some others are commentaries of well-known sources. Hence they are not included in the Periodic Table.

3. Several important works in the mentioned categories are omitted if they are either short (few ĥadīth) such as Bayhaqī's Ĥayātu'l Anbiyā'a fī Qubūrihim or Bukhārī's Raf' al-Yadayn fi's Şalāt – or if they are very brief anthologies ,such as the numerous Arbaýīn collections.

4. One of the major criterion for inclusion in the Periodic Table is the availability of the work. Almost all the works that figure in the PT are published and are available as PDFs. Works such as Şaĥīĥ al-Ismāýīlī or Tafsīr Marduwayh which are apparently lost – are not listed.

5. The number of ĥadīth indicated in the table are taken from published works. In some cases, the ĥadīth are not numbered and hence they are left blank.

6. The books are usually ordered chronologically in each category, except in columns with multiple categories. The first six are ordered as they are universally identified top six ĥadīth sources.

7. Symbols are mostly based on the name of the book, the author, or his appellations etc. Usually single letters are reserved for the seniormost ĥadīth masters or the most famous works.

8. The date of demise of the author/compiler of the work is mentioned in the bottom left corner of the box.

BRIEF DEFINITIONS OF CATEGORIES OF ĤADĪTH BOOKS

A brief description of categories of books and examples of the genre are mentioned below. The following list is prepared from Imām Muĥammad ibn Jaáfar al-Kattānī's Al-Mustaţrfah.

#	Definition	Example
1	The Six Motherbooks: These are the most commonly referenced books of ĥadīth, known as the Kutub al-Sittah. Two of these are şaĥīĥ collections and four are sunan. These books include both Jāmiý and Sunan (see below).	Bukhārī, Muslim, Sunan Abū Dāwūd, Jāmiý (or Sunan) Tirmidhī, Sunan Ibn Mājah, Sunan Nasāyī (Mujtabā).
2	Books of Four Imāms ĥadīth collections of the four imāms.	Musnad al-Shāfiýī, Musnad Imām Aáżam, Muwaţţa Imām Mālik, Musnad Imām Aĥmad
3	Other Şaĥīĥ Collections: Collections in which only şaĥīĥ narrations are recorded, other than the two famous şaĥīĥ collections	Şaĥīĥ Ibn Khuzaymah, Şaĥīĥ Ibn Ĥibbān
4	Mustadrak: Collection of ĥadīth deemed şaĥīĥ according to the conditions either or both of Bukhārī and Muslim, but which they have not listed in their collections.	Mustadrak of Ĥākim
5	Mustakhraj: Compilation such that the ĥadīth of the original work is narrated via another route and has not been mentioned by the author. For example, Mustakhraj of Bukhārī means that a ĥadīth found in Bukhārī is narrated via another route but not mentioned in Şaĥīĥ al-Bukhārī.	Mustakhraj álā Şaĥīĥ Bukhārī by Ismāýīlī Mustakhraj álā Muslim Abū Nuáym

#	Definition	Example
6	Sunan: Those books which are ordered according to fiqh topics, such as: Purity, Prayer, Zakāt, etc. These books do not have mawqūf narrations	Sunan al-Shāfiýī, Sunan al-Kubrā of Nasāyī, Sunan al Kabīr of Bayhaqī
7	Kitāb al-Sunnah: Books that list ĥadīth exhorting one to adhere to the Sunnah and abstain from innovation and heresy in religion.	Kitāb al-Sunnah of Imām Aĥmad Kitāb al-Sunnah of Ibn Mandah
8	Muşannaf: Compilation of ĥadīth (sunan) and similar narrations in the order of fiqh topics. Some are called Muşannaf, and some are called Jāmiý.	Muşannaf Ábd al-Razzāq Muşannaf Ibn Abī Shaybah
9	Jāmiý / Jawāmiý: Compilation of ĥadīth (sunan) and similar narrations in the order of fiqh topics. Some are called Muşannaf, and some are called Jāmiý.	Jāmiý Maámar ibn Rāshid; Jāmiý al-Kabīr of Imām Bukhārī; Jāmiý of Imām Muslim
